CONTEXT OF THE ROLE

Outdoor learning is at the heart of Brathay's work with children, young people and families. For 75 years, we have recognised the benefit that being outdoors can have, with measurable impact on health and wellbeing. This is the foundation of our blended learning approach, connecting young people with nature through our community and residential programmes.

We want to deepen our outdoor learning delivery, to further embed our commitment to environmental sustainability and support our communities and nature to thrive. Equitable access to nature and the outdoors is vital for children and young people who are increasingly disconnected from the natural world.

As our Outdoor Learning Officer, you will play an important role in delivering 'Our Future', a new project which will work alongside our children and young people community and residential team, and local partners in Barrow in Furness to design and deliver exciting environmental programmes for young people and their families.

WHAT YOU'LL BE DOING

This project will combine powerful residential experiences, away in nature, with local community-based experiences. We hope to combine a progression of engagement, awareness, and action, encouraging young people to deepen their relationships with the natural world, to understand how they benefit from accessing outdoor and nature spaces, and the role they can play in looking after nature for future generations to come. Please see the job description for further information about the role.
